

About Axonic

Axonic is a young company focused on information, communication and recognition technologies. The company is headquartered in Karlsruhe and was founded in 2003 by Martin Welker. For the last few years, Axonic research and development has focused on the area of "communication intelligence" - the targeted analysis, representation and simplification of communication.